

NEW EARTHQUAKE ROCKS VALLEY OF OAXACA, MEXICO

Constant Tremors at Scene of Wednesday's Disaster Cause Many Persons to Flee to Hills.

DEATH TOLL NOW 65 IN FIRST TREMBLORS

30 Persons Killed at Guetapova and 20 at Miahuatlan — Increase in List Is Expected.

By the Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 17.—An almost continual earthquake, accompanied by weird subterranean rumblings, caused new alarm in the valley of Oaxaca today. The valley was shaken again and again. Some new damage was caused. Advances reached the city from outlying towns and villages of the extent of the disaster which accompanied Wednesday night's quakes. Thirty persons were killed when Wednesday's earthquake struck the village of Guetapova, 30 miles west of Oaxaca City, reports say. An unconfirmed report from Huixtotepec, 18 miles south of Oaxaca City, says several persons were thought to have been killed in the collapse of an old church there.

These latest dispatches brought the known death toll to 65. Twenty were killed at Miahuatlan, south of Oaxaca City, 13 at Oaxaca City and three in Mexico City. It is feared that the number of victims will be larger as definite reports are received.

Conservative estimates say Oaxaca City was at least half destroyed.

Reports that 51 persons had been killed in the town of Zimatlan, near Oaxaca, circulated today but they could not be verified.

Sound Like Artillery Fire.

Dr. Justo Rueda, in charge of the observatory at Oaxaca, telephoning to the national meteorological station here, described the continuing earthquakes and subterranean rumblings as "sounding as if many pieces of artillery of heavy caliber were doing continuous firing."

He continued: "At the time of filing this message the movements continue with hardly a minute's suspension, after which they return again with the same desperate intensity."

The constant trembling and the accompanying subterranean roar, he said, has caused "indescribable panic" among the residents, many of whom have fled to the hills.

Rueda stated that all the observatory's instruments had been thrown out of order and that he could report only the shocks which he himself felt and heard. He said that 11 bodies had been recovered and that nine persons seriously injured persons were being cared for in field tents set up in the public park.

In Mexico City three light earthquakes were felt yesterday. The first, the strongest, was at 12:30 p. m., the next at 5:15 p. m., and the last at 10:30 p. m.

Disasters from Pinotepa Nacional, in the southwest corner of Oaxaca, say Wednesday's quakes were followed by a rain of shooting stars. The phenomenon added greatly to the fear of the Indian natives.

Volcano of Colima Active.

Colima dispatches say that the semiactive volcano of Colima has begun to emit smoke and low rumblings. The volcano is about 200 miles south of Cuernavaca, where last week showed signs of renewed activity.

Members of the American colony at Oaxaca escaped injury in the earthquake which partly demolished the town. Mrs. G. W. Thompson, an American resident there, telegraphed her husband in Mexico City.

She said her house, which escaped damage, had been converted into a temporary emergency station to take care of the injured.

That part of Oaxaca built on high ground escaped serious damage, but the part of the city which stood on low sandy soil was largely demolished.

"Almost all of the houses were destroyed and the homeless fill the streets," said Mrs. Thompson. "Many small towns nearby are in ruins. People are seeking refuge in the hills. The city is in darkness. Soldiers are guarding the city."

Three more persons died here last night from exposure as a consequence of the abnormally low temperatures which have prevailed this week. The deaths brought the total from the cold wave to six.

City Planners' Design for Union Station (Aloe) Plaza

UNION STATION (ALOE) PLAZA. KANSAS CITY, MISSOURI.

DRAWING exhibited for the first time at the annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce at Hotel Jefferson last night. The sketch was made by Fred H. Graf in the office of Harland Bartholomew, engineer of the City Plan Commission.

The design was approved by the commission when submitted by Bartholomew in 1926. Other city officials have not passed on it.

Estimated cost is $1,200,000, but there is only a fraction of this amount remaining in the $3,600,000 bond issue of 1923, and no other money is definitely in sight. A proposal has been made that the fund be augmented by a transfer of the Senate were in the mood to put it through this afternoon, whatever might have been the delay from the White House by the plan.

$25,000,000 FOOD RELIEF BILL PASSED BY THE SENATE

Robinson has back up. Robinson, the minority leader, had plainly signified that he was tired of surrendering to the President and the House. He had his back up.

Meanwhile, on the House side of the Capitol, Representative Will Wood of Indiana, the Chairman of the House Appropriations Committee and an important cog in the machine controlling that branch of Congress, was predicting that the House never would accept the Robinson amendment.

Wood said that, if the Senate insisted on it, a deadlock would ensue that might prevent the passage of any of the supply bills in the present session. In that event, he said, an extra session could be averted only through the passage of a continuing resolution making the federal departments apply to the coming fiscal year.

Expressing the administration point of view, Wood said the same principle was at stake as in the case of the nation's food supply. He said that $1,000,000,000 of food for the nation's food supply.

"We held and we still hold," said Wood, "that direct relief would dry up the forces of private charity to which the nation always has looked for distress relief. Acceptance of the Robinson amendment would be a long step towards the conversion of the Red Cross into a mere distribution agency."

"Great Doubt as to Need," "Moreover, great doubt exists as to the need of any such large amount as $25,000,000. The Red Cross is handling the situation valiantly. Our latest reports are that the $10,000,000 which the President and John Barton Payne have asked of the country through private contributions will be ample."

"The Senate agitation has created doubt as to the part the Federal Government is to play and is holding back the Red Cross campaign."

It would be well for the states, counties, cities and towns to realize at once that drafts are not to be made on the public treasury. The President is against this policy, the best thought of the nation is against it and, unless I am greatly mistaken, the House is against it."

Among those in the Senate who defended the President's policy, the discussion was along similar lines. Bingham (Rep., Connecticut), conceded that the Red Cross had been "a little slow in realizing the extent of the suffering," but he felt that the Red Cross was competent to take care of the situation and should be allowed to do so through private contributions. He believed that the people of the United States wanted "the joy and pleasure" of making voluntary offerings.

McKellar (Dem., Tennessee), observed that Bingham had fathered a bill for relief in Porto Rico after the hurricane of a few years ago, but Bingham replied that none of the money then voted was for food.

Barkley (Dem., Kentucky), who gave a vivid description of suffering in his State, failed to see the difference between "relief and hair-splitting difference" between giving relief to foreign countries and relief to American citizens.

Commons on Community Funds.

Bingham made the point that when relief was sent abroad it went to non-voters, but when it went to American citizens it went to voters. Having once received it, said Bingham, the voters would bring pressure for more.

Norris (Rep., Nebraska) replied from the street-opening item of the bond issue, since the plaza plan is connected with the Market street widening, but no progress has been made with this idea.

Work of clearing the site has been started, with the expectation that the Terminal Railroad will furnish some money to add to what the city has for at least partial development.

The Terminal Railroad and some city officials have objected to the design, particularly to the double-decking provision, which is shown in Graf's picture. The design calls for two levels, with the Market street cars and automobile parking spaces on the lower one, leaving widened Market street open for vehicles above. The main entrance to the station, as shown at the left of that building, would be into the second-floor waiting room, and the Terminal Hotel entrance, at the right, likewise would be at the second floor. An underpass would be provided for nineteenth street traffic and a ramp, shown at the right, for that in Twentieth street.

The picture shows the new extension of the Terminal Railroad, which involved shifting Twentieth street west to eliminate a jagged postoffice extension at the southeast corner of Eighteenth and Market, and in the background, the Memorial Plaza group of civic buildings and the Mississippi.

Relief Appropriations in One Day in Area Total $68,750, Regional Manager Announces.

Red Cross appropriations for drought relief in the Midwestern Area amounted to $68,750 in 24 hours, while total contributions from the 17 states of the area amounted to $101,625 in four days, William M. Baxter Jr., manager, announced today at area headquarters here.

St. Louis' contributions exceeded a total of $30,000 today, with new gifts including $1500 from Famous & Barr, $1000 from Mrs. Newton Wilson, $700 from Mrs. Albert T. Hickey of New York, formerly of St. Louis, and $500 from Rice-Six Dry Goods Co. The St. Louis quota of the $10,000,000 American Red Cross fund to prevent suffering and starvation is $22,000. The area quota is $2,340,000.

Business and religious institutions were joined in appeals to St. Louisans to aid in relief. Support for the campaign was urged by the Church Federation through its president, the Rev. J. E. Crowther, by Coadjutor Bishop Scarlett of the Episcopal Diocese of Missouri, and by Rabbi Samuel Thurman of United Hebrew Temple.

The fact that St. Louisans have extensive trade and property interests in the most severely stricken territory was emphasized by the Rev. H. Lang, chairman of the St. Louis Committee of the St. Louis Chapter.

"Our dollar is helping not only our fellowman, but our customer," said Lang. "It is not only sustaining life for this customer, but it is rebuilding his hope and courage both so absolutely necessary in his struggle to regain his former status."

At area headquarters, Baxter received a report that 376 head of stock died of starvation yesterday in Crittenden County, Arkansas. One woman planter lost 15 of her 35 mules Thursday. A trading concern had two mules jacked up in their stalls to keep them on their feet for feeding. "Food was not available within 10 days to prevent death of hundreds of animals."

A field worker at Helena reported that no old clothes were left in the community's attic and closets. "The poor people are unable to provide the inadequately clothed that no reserves were left for cold weather."

"Women are knitting up the yarn left over from the war to make warm blankets for the poor and children. It has been ascertained the hospital gowns will serve three purposes. The scale of election expenses, under the provisions of the bill, will be reduced by 2 cents per elector in each constituency. Thus, in county constituencies the scale will be 10 cents instead of 12 and in borough 8 cents instead of 10.

The Liberals, who are poorly represented in the House of Commons in proportion to their total national vote, think that their membership will be increased at the next election if this bill is enacted into law. Labor also expects to gain under the proposed law through abolition of the business premises voting qualifications, the restricted use of automobiles at election time, and the abolition of the university constituencies which have elected a Laborite.

At the last general election in Great Britain the Liberals polled a popular vote of 5,260,050, which netted them only 59 seats in Parliament. Labor, with a popular vote of 8,215,517 won 181 seats and the Conservatives, with a slightly larger popular vote—8,669,459 won 260 seats.

BRITISH MINISTRY DRAFTS ELECTION REFORM MEASURE

Bill to Be Introduced This Month Provides Proportional Representation in Commons.

By ARTHUR E. MANN, A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World. Copyright, 1931, by the Post-Dispatch and New York World. Published by the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

LONDON, Jan. 17.—The most drastic changes in the British electoral system since the reform act of 1832 are proposed in a bill sponsored by the Labor Government, the text of which was published yesterday. It will be introduced in Parliament this month.

Proportional representation, which the Liberal party has long fought, is provided for by introduction of the alternative vote system. This is generally regarded as the price the MacDonald Government has paid for continued Liberal support in Parliament.

Under this system where there are more than two candidates for a seat in Parliament the voter may indicate a second preference choice. Any candidate receiving an absolute majority of first preference votes will be elected. If there is no such absolute majority the candidate receiving the smallest number of first preference votes will be eliminated. The second preference vote on the eliminated candidate's ballots would then be added to the first preference totals of the two remaining candidates. The candidate whose total thus reached the highest figure would be elected.

How Plan Would Work.

Suppose, for example, a Labor candidate received 5000 votes, a Liberal 4000 and a Conservative 3500. The Conservative would be automatically eliminated as having received the smallest number of first preference votes. Suppose that 3000 of the Liberal's total preference votes were for the Liberal candidate and 500 for the Labor candidate. The Liberal's total vote would thus be counted as 7000 and the Liberal would be elected.

The Government's bill also provides for division of certain constituencies now returning two members to Parliament into two single-member constituencies. As there are 11 such constituencies the membership of the House of Commons will be increased by 11 if the bill becomes law.

The bill also provides for abolition of the university constituencies, of which there are seven, restrictions on the use of automobiles to take voters to the polls, and reduction of the election expenses of candidates.

The present right to vote both in the residential constituency and in the constituency where he rents an office, will be abolished, except in the City of London.

Out in Election Expenses.

The scale of election expenses, under the provisions of the bill, will be reduced by 2 cents per elector in each constituency. Thus, in county constituencies the scale will be 10 cents instead of 12 and in borough 8 cents instead of 10.

The Liberals, who are poorly represented in the House of Commons in proportion to their total national vote, think that their membership will be increased at the next election if this bill is enacted into law. Gaby Street will be in charge of the smallest Cardinal baseball squad that ever has gone to training camp when he goes to work at Bradenton, Fla., next month on the job of preparing the Redbirds for the 1931 pennant campaign. Last year it appeared the Cardinals had an unusually small squad when only 25 active players were scheduled to report, but this season only 28 athletes are on the roster.

Eleven hurriers are on the roster, which also includes six fielders, eight outfielders and three catchers. There will be a usual group of minor league pitchers and catchers and perhaps a few other players from farm teams, but the bulk will be at Bradenton merely "props" to assist in the work of training.

Team Is Now "All Set."
The 1931 squad will be in striking contrast to the crowds that formerly went to Redbird training camps. Five or ten years ago, before the Cardinals became big league, the baseball world and before the team was established as a smoothly working organization, it was not unusual for as many as 50 players to assemble each spring and rarely until recent years did the total go below 40.

Explanation rests in the fact that the Cardinals now are "set" for each pennant race. Owners and manager know just about what the various athletes can do and Street's only worry will be to decide the best combination in the outfield.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—The stock market skidded in the last half hour of trading today, and closed around the week's lowest levels.

The slow rally of the previous session continued during the first hour, but trading slackened so close to a standstill that professional traders holding for action dropped heavy selling orders in the late trading, and the list closed with a weak tone, 1 to 4 points lower. Transfers for the two-hour session were only about 650,000 shares.

Chemicals were again under pressure. Allied broke 4 points, and duPont and Air Reduction, more than 2. Westinghouse Electric and Vanadium lost 2, and issues closed at or more down during the early trading. The rails displayed group strength, presumably reflecting brokerage house gossip to the effect that a favorable decision on valuation is expected from the Interstate Commerce Commission shortly.

Numerous Temporary Gains.
The market recorded numerous temporary gains of a point or more during the early trading, but it was displayed group strength, presumably reflecting brokerage house gossip to the effect that a favorable decision on valuation is expected from the Interstate Commerce Commission shortly.

Announcement of a price reduction by Ford Motor Co. may have been a factor in the selling, although a move was not unexpected. Edsel Ford, in making the announcement, spoke optimistically of the outlook, saying that reports from dealers and branches throughout the world "lead us to believe automobile business will show a steady improvement in 1931."

Furthermore, advance reports of prospective operating schedules in the Youngstown area next week indicate further acceleration of activity in the steel industry, particularly branches serving the automotive trade.

Mellon Rumor Again.
The threadbare rumor of an early resignation of Secretary Mellon again appeared, but it was too early to have the bearish influence of old, and had been denied before the market developed decided heaviness.

The weekly mercantile reviews said the more cheerful feeling in the industry was being maintained, and sales and cold weather were making for a fair volume of retail trade.

In the foreign exchanges, Brazil rallied briskly, reflecting reports of negotiations in London for another coffee loan. Sterling was heavy, sagging 3-32 to 4-8 1/2 for cables.

Wall Street News and Comment

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—Sheet metal production for December totaled 145,125 net tons, with operations at 93.8 per cent of capacity, the National Association of Flat Rolled Steel Manufacturers reports.

Production in November totaled 148,550 net tons. December sales were 233,250 tons, against 135,682 in November; unfilled tonnage as of Jan. 1 increased to 378,601 tons from 295,282 tons as of Dec. 1.

Federal Motor Truck Co. has offered to purchase at par and accrued interest all or any part of its outstanding $400,000 5 per cent notes, due Nov. 1, 1931.

An expected increase in replacement demand from American motorists should give the automobile tire industry substantial impetus in 1931, bringing expansion in output and stabilization of prices, a survey of the rubber outlook by the United States Trust Co. of Cleveland says.

Manufacturing operations in the United States in December declined 5.8 per cent from November and 14.8 per cent from December, 1929, a survey of electrical energy consumed in more than 3800 plants throughout the country by Electrical World shows. The survey says, however, that if allowance is made in each industry for seasonal characteristics, the average shows almost no change, the reduction was not more than normal.
